

Three Day Equine Anatomy Clinic

“A Matter for Dissection” – New unique standing dissection

Sharon May-Davis is a world renowned Equine Therapist and Scientist. Her experience with performance horses has spanned over 45 years and boasts clients representing Australia in four equestrian disciplines. Her practical applications have been supported by an array of academic qualifications that have been obtained at Tertiary and University levels in Australia and the United States of America. These include a Bachelor of Applied Science (Equine), a Research and Coursework Masters Degree (4 Equine Thesi) and numerous Equine Therapeutic qualifications, and currently completing her Ph.D.

In addition, Sharon has taught equine subjects at various educational facilities for nearly 25 years and spoken at many seminars, expositions and workshops in Australia and overseas. One particular highlight occurred in 2005, when she spoke at the World Expo in Achi Japan on three equine subjects.

Over the years, Sharon has earned two descriptive nicknames - “The Bone Lady” and “Equine CSI”. This was due to her research into equine anatomy and skeletal articulations, and as a direct consequence, Midway College Kentucky awarded her a “Certificate of Honor” in recognition. This was soon followed by her appointment as the Equine Anatomical Consultant for Edu-Corp Inc., America.

Sharon’s devotion to performance horses and her comprehensive understanding of associated anatomy and athletic ability has seen her develop specific techniques relevant to various equine disciplines and rehabilitation. As a direct consequence, horses have improved their athletic capabilities and the record books verify their accomplishments. However, none of this could have been achieved without the knowledge of what lay beneath the outer layer of hair and skin. With this in mind, Sharon is always striving to understand the variations that lie within and thus, is looking forward to presenting this clinic so that we all may gain from the experience.

Our new unique standing dissection is without a doubt, one of the most innovative ways to present equine anatomy and biomechanics. The participant is able to view all angles of the horse and envisage left and right anatomical features in a comparative format as the layers peel away. Perhaps one of the greatest benefits is the palpation that this method allows. The student can freely palpate the non dissected side for a comparative interpretation and this in itself is an invaluable lesson.

The biomechanics of the limbs are further enhanced when mobility becomes available. The standing dissection allows for a greater range of movement and therefore how the limb influences the upper body whilst in motion.

It truly is a ‘must go to’ event for the avid and serious horse person.
